Track

When you've sent your application and received your welcome email, you can see how it's progressing by signing in to the online system, Track.

You'll be able to sign in at any time with the Personal ID in your welcome email, along with the password you used when applying.

Whenever there's an update, UCAS will email the address you supplied in your application.

What Happens Next?

Offers – wait to see if any of your university/college choices offer you an interview or a place on their course.

Replies – these are the responses you make to the offers you get.

Results – confirmation of an offer might depend on your exam results.

How it works

There are different types of offer you could get from your university and college choices. They come through at different times too, so don't worry if you don't hear anything for a while.

You might get an invitation to an interview, rather than receiving an offer from a uni or college right away. After you've attended the interview, they'll decide if they're going to make you an offer.

Then you reply to your offers, which involves different deadlines depending on when you receive them.

Adding extra choices might be possible if you have no offers from your initial selections.

You might need to wait for exam results if your offer is conditional on them.
